

UL 300 Code Compliance in Illinois

As we begin 2009, many new State and local laws and regulations have gone into effect. One change that affects the food service industry is compliance to UL 300 Standards. The Illinois State Fire Marshall updated the State Code to require all kitchen hood fire suppression systems “installed for the protection of commercial cooking operations” comply with UL 300 Standards by January 1, 2010.

Jim Moran, Vice President of Fox Valley Fire & Safety, states “we are actively helping customers understand the requirements, and make the necessary changes to economically upgrade their systems to meet the UL 300 Standard”.

“Fox Valley Fire & Safety will inspect your system and generate a free quote to help you make the changes you need to keep your business going”. Don’t put off making this critical upgrade.
